

You are just opening a door for problems. People are already stressed. This will just add to the frustration of the crew when trying to deal with inconsiderate passengers. This is a safety issue no matter how you attempt to justify your decision.